Factory-Reconditioned Waring JEX328FR Health Juice Extractor

Factory-Reconditioned Waring JEX328FR health Juice Extractor Juicing is a healthful way to eat fruits and veggies, and the Waring Juice Extractor takes juicing to the next level. A high-speed 400-watt motor makes the extraction process efficient, and makers of carrot juice will especially appreciate the brushed stainless-steel housing"the extractor wonâ€™t turn orange with age.

Everyone whoâ€™s ever owned a juicer knows that cleanup is the biggest downfall of home juicing. With the Waring, that wonâ€™t be an issue"the compact strainer, pulp collector, lid, and juice collector are all dishwasher-safe, and the stainless-steel body wipes clean with a sponge. The extractorâ€™s die-cast base stays steady on the countertop, and its cushioned feet will minimize vibration, protecting the countertop from scratches. The extractor comes with an instruction book and a 90 day limited appliance warranty. "Ariel Meadow Stallings Editorâ€™s note: This is a reconditioned small appliance. Reconditioned generally means that the appliance has been returned to the manufacturer, who brings the appliance back to like-new condition. Some appliances may contain cosmetic blemishes. Customer Review: Amazed I canâ€™t believe how well this product works. Itâ€™s very sturdy, it looks great and it was soooo inexpensive!

Shadows Are Security

There was a time that people would put blind ads in the newspaper to find a date. The Internet has opened a new frontier for all the single men and women out there since almost every household has a computer. If men are sick and tired of seeing women that are thin and flat chested, there are now BBW dating services available that cater to those that are big breasted. In fact, women have also special preferences these days and go for males that are big and handsome as well. The systems used in these BBW dating sites are not that different from others on the web. The person is required to become a member first to be able to enjoy its BBW dating services. The first thing you should do on a BBW Dating Site is come up with a user name. It will be a good idea to think of a few because someone else could already be using it. The point of contact on the BBW dating site is the profile so people are not required to mention oneâ€™s email address. Aside from giving a profile, the newbie is also required to submit a picture. Studies have shown those who submit this have a better chance of meeting someone than those who just leave it blank. Since there are a lot of people who are also members of the site, you will also have to think of a good introductory line. It may be hard to sum up who the person is with just a few words but it is better than nothing to be able to reach out to strangers. Should someone reply, it is only proper to reply back even if the person is not interested. This is courtesy to the one who spent some effort initiating contact. However, if the person is interested, then the first date can be scheduled. This should be a public place where there are a lot of people present so no one will feel scared. During this time, you have the choice whether or not to reveal some personal details. Laying all the cards may be a turn off for someone but others appreciate the honesty so it is really a game. If the first date went well, then this will surely mean more to come. But before jumping the gun and thinking about becoming a couple, it is advisable to meet other people and then choose among the few which one has the potential of moving on to the next level. Some of the BBW dating sites are free while others will charge a fee. Those who are skeptical about paying will sometimes get a one month free trial period to enjoy some of the services. Those that are impressed can sign up later on to meet other people that are also seeking the same thing, which is companionship. It is perfectly all right to keep the profile active the entire time that the person is dating someone from the site. This is because the couple has not gotten married yet or anything but it is only right to close it should the two decide to go further. This is the only way for both parties to show sincerity in deciding to have a relationship. There is a saying that goes, "beauty is seen inside and not what is seen with one's eyes." Perhaps this is true for those who want to try a BBW dating site and may find that special someone to spend the rest of their life.

Blogs: The Coolest New Dating Tool It's easy to discount blogs as simply tools for newshounds, people who like to gripe or sell things, or teenagers. But blogs and their siblings webcasts are actually a great way to let potential dating and emailing partners know who you are. The best news is that they're easy to put together and you can do them for free. Creating A Blog The simplest way to do a blog is by opening a free account at Blogspot or a similar web service; there are also a few dating sites that are starting to let people blog on their services, though they generally charge a fee. Be certain to do all the basic work, like posting a picture or at least some sort of image to set you apart, and writing your bio. Now the real work begins. You can make your blog a simple online diary, where you record your daily deeds, or you can write some of your politics, or collect weird news stories and post them online. The only critical thing, if you're going to refer potential online dating site browsers to it, is that it must reflect who you really are. Never misrepresent yourself; it only leads to a lot of misery on both your part and your potential date's! Writing Ideas For Your Blog Don't know what to write? You can post absolutely anything you want, even snippets of songs you've heard. Do you write poetry or stories? That can go up. Or you can write about what happened to you today, or about your favorite hobby, a celebrity, or a charity you work for. Or you can focus on some of the common blog topics. A lot of people focus on a certain type of news, generally something they have an inside track on. This is what makes bloggers so formidable a news source. Do you work for a large pharmaceutical company? Don't ever give away corporate secrets or sneak around, but you can blog about what it's like, or what the real scoop is on the drug that's being panned in the news today. Do you have a really fascinating volunteer position with, say, search-and-rescue dogs? You can write about what it's really like going out to search for someone and finding them. If you think about it, everyone has something fascinating about themselves that they can write about. If that's scary to you, or you really can't think of anything, write about the things you'd like to do. Become a virtual tourist, and write about whitewater rafting with links out to pictures or tour companies. Or write about luxury boats. Share your passions so that your readers, and potential dates, can find out what you love. What Not To Do In A Blog Whatever you do, don't write depressing or angry stuff. No one wants to read about how miserable you are because you don't have a wife, or how much you hate your job and nothing else. Instead, write about your hopes and dreams, about your idea of the perfect woman (be honest), and about the things you hate about being single and having to date. You'll almost certainly find people who feel the same way. And it's having common ground that helps people begin talking online and dating offline.

I Have A Finely Tuned "Fluff" Detector I'm not sure exactly. Maybe it was the seven years I spent working with gang kids. Perhaps I've been conditioned by those eleven years' worth of high-pressure dealings with telecom companies. Or, more likely, it was the last five years of dating that got me to this point. But there's no denying it. I have a "smoke" detector that would make Judge Judy jealous. Let me explain. I make it a point to look for the best in people, and I believe I do my part in bringing it out in them. And as an adopted Texan a handshake means something to me. But I'll tell you what there's wisdom in training ourselves to recognize when someone's trying to deceive us and courage in having the self-esteem to accept that we're being flim-flammed and to call it out. For some unknown reason, such trickery is particularly prevalent in the dating world. Here are eight examples of the many ways people try to dupe us into accepting ridiculous circumstances: 1) "Get in touch with me and we'll make plans." Said as a response to interest expressed by someone else. At best a person who replies with this is on the fence about whether or not to go out with you. At worst, they've already made the decision. Either way, don't count on it happening. If this was a promising situation, you would be hearing more details. All of this is especially true when a woman hears this phrase from a man. He would be asking for your number were he interested. That said, I am not going to discount a man having such fear of rejection that he still doesn't ask for a woman's number when fed a similar line as an obvious hint. But that's a different context. And besides, ladies, you are better off NOT hearing from that guy anyway. 2) "Call me on that day and we'll set a time for the date." Translation: "Yeah, well I think I need some extra time to work out the details of how I'm going to end up flaking out on you." Let this person rearrange his or her sock drawer in peace.3) "Oh, him/her? S/he's just a friend." Let's assume for a moment, hopefully correctly, that you are not a pathologically jealous loser. Fair enough? Okay, then if you had to ask this question, his or her "friend" ISN'T JUST A FRIEND. And if the person of your affection DOES operate with his or her "friends" in a manner that fuels speculation otherwise, why put yourself through being concerned about it? Find someone with integrity. Which, of course, segues nicely into the next bullet point 4) "I think we should just be friends." Long utilized as a de facto standard by disinterested people everywhere, this signals that all attraction is now lost-if there ever was any to begin with. Sometimes a person really, truly does want to remain friends with someone despite an utter lack of romant-o-sexual chemistry. But such a mindset requires immense integrity on the part of someone who has true character. Knowing how rare that is, rest assured that this line is typically employed an allegedly "nice" way to actually end things.5) "I'm not ready for a relationship." Followed mentally by, "at least not until someone comes along who is more targeted towards who I am looking for than you are." Argue with me if you must on this one. I've seen people who were just "hurt bad" by someone, "focused on work" and/or "getting in touch with self right now" meet someone who really rocks their world. Then all of this crazy talk about "not being ready" goes out the window. Deep down, unless we are in a coma we all are ready to "relate" to someone-as long as it's the right someone.6) "Maybe." But most likely NOT. People who are interested don't use this word with you unless they are major game players. In either case, find someone else to spend your valuable energy on.7) "I've been really busy." This is simply metaphorical for "you are not a priority". You and I both know that it's basic human nature to move mountains in order to create huge blocks of time out of the "busiest" of schedules when we meet someone we are truly crazy about. Don't shout me down for telling the truth.8) "I have to be home early and/or get up early tomorrow." Ah, yes the trickiest one of all. Sometimes this one really is TRUE. What a bummer to have to play this card at face value. After all, most of the time this is what falls out of the mouth of someone who wants to bail out of a date IMMEDIATELY. So how can you tell the difference? Simple. If it comes out of LEFT FIELD and without any elaboration, there's a 100% chance he or she wants out now. On the other hand, if you are told ahead of time about it you can put some stock in the statement ESPECIALLY if he or she bends rules a bit when the pre-determined hour arrives and chooses to stay out a bit later. Additionally, when someone legitimately has to get home early you are likely to be BOMBARDED with heartfelt apologies and proactive suggestions about when and where to see you again. I know that most of you have heard some of these examples before. In fact, I'm willing to bet that you've even uttered some of them yourself. Either way, it comes down to something other than a desire to be blatantly deceitful. I believe all this "smoke blowing" is rooted in nothing other than sheer cowardice. People just don't have the guts to tell other people the truth. So they lie. My stand on the matter is that we're all adults around here and tactful positioning of the TRUTH is always more productive for everyone involved in the dating world than laying false hope on someone. Never mind that whoever is subject to such mental gymnastics would be naive and/or flat-out obsessed to believe any of it. That's beside the point. Yet, many of us are serving up more "whoppers" than Burger King when it comes to dealing with people who are interested in us. Stop that. Be honest with people. And be honest with YOURSELF when you are hearing any of the lines above. What we often consider "tried and true" lines to feed one another are actually "tired and FALSE". Deserve what you want.

How to Date a Sexy Russian Woman Dating a sexy Russian woman is much easier than one would think. There are three hurdles to first overcome before diving into the sexy Russian woman dating scene!1. Get over your pre-historic hang ups! What this means is to first remember and embrace the time in which you live. This is truly an electronic age where the typical old rules of how to go about living life are now thrown out the window. You don't go and use a pay phone when you have a cell phone on you. You no longer rent vhs tapes when dvd is available. You don't go driving 300 miles to a junkyard that might have the right part for your car when you can hop on ebay and get it. So goes the rules for dating and finding attractive women. No one goes to bars anymore week after week after week hoping to maybe talk to a woman when you can find a sexy Russian woman online in one night and begin conversing with her right away. The point is we live in a new kind of world and the possibilities are pretty amazing and should be taken advantage of. Being able to easily date a sexy Russian woman is one of those amazing advantages we now have.2. Get over your physical distance hang-ups! Now that the mental hang-ups over meeting a sexy Russian woman are out of the way, the physical road blocks need to be dealt with. When there is lack of one element, there is usually an abundance of another. This is the case with engaging in a relationship with a sexy Russian woman. While the distance physically may seem far, the closeness you will achieve through continual communication online will be so great that you'll see why typical, standard American relationships, fail so often. Communication is always the number one factor in relationships, and to think you are mastering that aspect from the very start, creates a powerful opportunity for a successful relationship with a sexy Russian woman. And when you finally meet the sexy Russian woman it will be much more significant and meaningful, while all the back and forth formalities of getting to know one another will already have been achieved. Remember as well, that while the physical distance is great, we do live in a time where one can hop on an airplane and be only several hours away from meeting with a sexy Russian woman.3. Get help! Don't go into your search for a sexy Russian woman alone. As always it is important to find the safest, honest, and most efficient path to take when entering into any new and exciting adventure. Researching and reading the right route to take when looking to date a sexy Russian woman involves finding the right websites, advice forums, and learning the proper etiquette. It also involves researching Russian culture, especially up to date information on the social scene, important news, and latest trends. Dating a sexy Russian woman can be exciting and very rewarding. You get to learn a great deal about another culture, you build a strong bond through the communication relationship you develop online, and you're taking advantage of living in this incredible, unique, electronic world, where dating a sexy Russian woman can literally be a few clicks away!

Rod River ; Bulk Fishing Tackle Plano 4-By Tackle System Featuring four times the storage and four times the versatility, the Plano "4-By" Rack System is all the tackle box you should ever need. This innovative storage system features interchangeable utility boxes to keep your favorites close at hand, and spacious bulk storage for everything else you use when fishing. Rod River Hatch Guide for New England Streams by Thomas Ames, New England's streams, and the insects and fish that inhabit them, have their own unique qualities. Their flowing waters support an amazing diversity of insect species from all of the major orders -- in fact, at last count, Maine, alone, has 162 species of mayflies, the most of any state. Few, if any, books deal with the insects and life stages specific to New England, until now. Hatch Guide to New England Streams, by professional photographer and "amateur entomology enthusiast" Thomas Ames, explores the insects of New England. Ames covers: reading water; presentations for New England streams; tackle; night fishing; and more. The bulk of this book, however, deals with the insects and the best flies to imitate them. Similar in style to Jim Schollmeyer's successful "Hatch Guide" series, Ames discusses the natural and its behaviors on the left-hand page and the three best flies to imitate it on the right, including proper size and effective techniques. Tom's color photography of the naturals and their imitations is superb, making this book as beautiful as it is useful. African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) suffers from a lack of female translators

Darfur, Sudan (RI): The African Union Mission in Sudan (AMIS) suffers from a lack of female translators, which greatly hinders its effectiveness. While AMIS should be commended for recruiting female Civilian Police, the added benefit of having female police has been lost because of the lack of female translators. With only one female translator for all of the Nyala camps in South Darfur, the female Civilian Police are forced to use male translators when speaking with women on patrol or when the women come with complaints. In general, a lack of translators (as well as cars, radios, and other communication equipment) greatly hampers AMIS's capacity to assist civilians.

India: prisoners languishing in jail for years due to lack of translators

Bhubaneswar, India (Statesman): A fact-finding team of the Committee Against Violence on Women has come up with shocking facts ranging from people languishing in jails for years without being sent to court, mistaken identity and sub-human conditions in which women prisoners were kept. [â€] Most times, these poor prisoners are not taken to court either due to lack of escort or absence of translators for their tribal language, said the committee.

California: HMO interpreting rules may force children to act as translators

California, USA (SB): Health maintenance organizations must now ensure that their members receive services in a language that they understand, consumer groups and officials at the California Department of Managed Health Care said Thursday. Each managed care plan will be required to translate its written materials and make sure that interpreters are on hand when its members need medical care. [â€] But in medical facilities that do not have those kinds of services, children are often called in to serve as translators for their parents, and non-English-speaking patients sometimes go without needed care because they are intimidated.

National Translation Mission launched in India

New Delhi, India (Hindu): In a multi-lingual country like India, the government as well as educationists are now recognising the importance of translation from one regional language to another and from all regional languages to an international language such as English. The establishment of The National Translation Mission under the large umbrella of National Knowledge Commission bears evidence to the government's recognition of this need.

Indian " Argentine extradition case hampered by translation issue

Bombay, India (Times): The CBI team has finally handed over documents pushing for the extradition of Quattrocchi to the Argentine Foreign Ministry. [!] But Pramathesh Rath, India's ambassador to Argentina, casts a shadow on the Government's claim that the file received from Argentina needed to be translated from Spanish. The CBI claims the translation to be the cause of their delayed departure to Argentina. But the ambassador confirms that on receiving notice of Quattrocchi's detention he had passed it on to New Delhi with the translation.

SMART solution to EU translation problem

Brussels, Belgium (Cordis): More than half of Europeans can only hold a conversation in their own language. Yet many of us find ourselves working in a multi-lingual environment. For the most part, we rely on professional or online translation services to help us understand documents in other languages, but these often produce inaccurate results. The Statistical Multilingual Analysis for Retrieval and Translation (SMART), an EU funded project launched recently, aims to help reduce such language barriers by applying statistical machine techniques to translation.

How nisei translators helped win World War II

Hawaii, USA (HSB): Army historian John C. McNaughton has worked for nearly two decades on the first official history of the 6,000 Japanese-American Army linguists credited by many with altering the outcome of World War II. [!] During the war, the Military Intelligence Language School operated in Minnesota at Fort Savage and Fort Snelling. By the spring of 1946, the school graduated 6,000 linguists. The book, in great detail, retraces the war in the Pacific and the contributions of nisei linguists in places like China-Burma, the Philippines, Okinawa, the Aleutians, Guadalcanal, Guam and postwar Japan.
